

Can photovoltaic panels be bought out now

Overview

Yes, solar panels are still worth it for the vast majority of U. The primary financial driver is the cost of grid electricity, which is projected to rise much faster than historical. Given the rush of homeowners who are trying to get their projects installed before the end of the year, to ensure tax credit eligibility, we've been closely tracking installer backlogs and equipment availability. The One Big Beautiful Bill (OBBB) is a massive piece of legislation with many parts. As a homeowner, installing solar panels on your property is a great way to save money on your energy costs over multiple decades. If it were me, I would have bought it out initially, but oh well. Current PG&E electric rates: E-1 at $0. The question is, how can you determine whether or not it makes sense for you?
