

Prague electric vehicle costs

Overview

---

How much does it cost to charge an electric vehicle?

It costs €5. Starting January, owners of electric cars will pay half the fee charged to conventional combustion-engine vehicles, while plug-in hybrid owners will lose all previous parking concessions. The change aims to free up. On the basis of a Prague City Council Resolution, free parking for vehicles with EL series registration plates (low-emission vehicles, especially hybrids) ended as of 1 January 2026. However, the city is introducing a new system of discounts and benefits that supports eco-friendly transportation, protects residents' interests, and sets sustainable rules for the future. * This. With one of the highest rates of EV sales among car manufacturers in Czechia, Mercedes' "compact luxury" EQA and EQB electric models are among those which qualify for the new subsidy, opening up possibilities for luxury driving at a more affordable price tag. [1] As of October 2022, 4% of new cars registered in the Czech Republic were electric or plug-in hybrid.
